100 WOMEN ATTEND RECEPTION GIVEN TO COMMITTEEWOMEN

Bucks County Council Observes "Hoover Day"
at Doylestown

SOLICITOR IS SPEAKER

Mark Thatcher Gives Interesting Address to The Women

About 100 women attended a reception given yesterday afternoon by the officers and directors of the Bucks County Council of Republican Women to the committee women of Bucks County, held at the Doylestown Country Club.

Mrs. John W. Cooper, Pineville, president of the Council, presided,
and welcomed the ladies assembled.

This event was known as Bucks County Women's observance of "Hoover Day."

The speaker was Bucks County Solicitor Mark Thatcher, Perkasie. He urged the support of all women to President Hoover and gave a history of Mr. Hoover's achievements as a private citizen and also as chief executive of the United States, illustrating his great humanitarian qualities.

Continuing Mr. Thatcher gave instructions as to the duties of committee-women's work, stating: "Familiarize yourself with the Republican party's history. The trouble is in most instances, public officers are criticized severely when they do something wrong, but they very seldom receive praise when they do big things."

The speaker stated that in his opinion women should assist in raising funds for a political campaign just the same as men. "Raising funds for a political campaign is just as honorable as raising funds for any other kind of campaign," he said.

Mr. Thatcher spoke to the ladies assembled at length on the importance of getting out to vote in November, declaring "the women of America are going to determine President Hoover's election." No one living, who reads his speeches and hears him talk can think for one minute that he has forgotten anybody."

The ladies were urged by the speaker to send Congressman Watson back to Congress with Mr. Hoover, so that he will have men to work with him instead of against him.

In closing, Mr. Thatcher described President Hoover as a "world-wide leader."

Following this President Hoover's address from Washington was listened to over radio.

Tea was then served, the tea table being presided over by Mrs. Frank Gertelzki and Mrs. Albert W. Pearson, of Solebury.

Firemen Confer Upon Zoning Territory Near Here

HULMEVILLE, Oct. 8.—There was additional discussion last night at a meeting of the William Penn Fire Company upon the subject of zoning the area in which the fire companies of South Langhorne, Langhorne and the William Penn Company now answer calls.

A committee was present from the South Langhorne Company for the purpose of discussing this question with the William Penn firemen. Under the plan as proposed by the South Langhorne group the territory would be divided into zones and Langhorne, South Langhorne and William Penn companies would answer only calls received in their respective zones, unless otherwise summoned by some-one in authority of the zone other than their own.

A committee was named by the William Penn Company to confer with the Langhorne Company on the last Tuesday in October, the said conference to also be attended by a committee from the South Langhorne company.

John Keim acted as the spokesman for the South Langhorne Company and the meeting was presided over by Cyrus E. Smith, of Hulmeville.

Organize Safety Patrol At Tullytown Schools

TULLYTOWN, Oct. 8.—A safety guide and patrol was organized at the public schools this week by Constable Joseph Zuchero. The patrol was formed to assist the children crossing the highway. Motorists are asked to observe the caution signs which are placed within a short distance of the school grounds.

The following officers of the patrol
were elected: President, Lula Cavin; vice-president, Christine Paroli; secretary, Mildred Heller; safety guides, Catherine Quinn, Lucy Silvi, Albert
Wright, Joseph Lovett, George Cutch-ineal and William Hubbs.

Safety patrol leaders are Alfred Zuchero, Merrill Bachofer, William Lynch and Norman Giberson.

FRIENDS OF PINCHOT EXPECT HIS RETIREMENT

As Proof of Rumor Point to Character and Background of Appointees

PICKED THE BEST-FITTED

By William P. Brown
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

HARRISBURG, Oct. 8.—(INS)—
Many of those close to Gov. Gifford Pinchot are pointing today to the character and background of those he has named to the Public Service Commission as proof of a recent rumor that the chief executive will retire entirely from politics at the end of his term.

In making the five appointments to the Commission the Governor apparently threw all political considerations to the wind and picked the men he believed best fitted for what he considers the most important places at his disposal.

The first two appointments—George W. Woodruff and Frederick P. Gruenberg—only served to whet the appetites of those politically-minded gentlemen who had been responsible for the Pinchot political victories. They took it for granted that when the Governor filled any remaining vacancies to the $10,000 posts he would give them to those who were able to swing votes at elections rather than those fitted for jobs of that size.

The naming of both Dr. Clyde L.
King and P. S. Stahlnecker was much in line with the first two appointments. Dr. King disdains the hurly-burly of politics. Stahlnecker has been the chief political adviser for many years but is not looked upon as the type to build personally a strong following in any section of the state.

The Pinchot enemies cited the appointment of Stahlnecker to strengthen their theory that the entire commission would be made a political football and that the former secretary's chief job would be to remove the incumbents and fill their places with the Pinchot job seekers.

That rumor was promptly and very Pills or Politics?

Here is one young man who has no ambition to follow in the footsteps of his father. He is Gifford Pinchot, Jr., only son of the Governor of Pennsylvania, who is planning a medical career and is now studying at the Pacific Coast preparatory to entering Yale. The boy says he will not enter politics because he doesn't like oratory.

Announce Program At Grand Theatre Today

Another good, well-balanced bill will be at the Grand Theatre today, with "Cazano," the musical wizard; Maley and O'Brien, lively comedy and good singing; Bud and Elinor Coll, acrobatic dancing as you like it; and Richard Talmadge in the feature picture,
"Get That Girl."

Mr. Talmadge is called the ace of the screen from the way he seems to defy death, and every picture is sure to be chock full of action, so this one will be no exception from that score.

There will be a very popular song reel, and news events, with a chapter of "Shadow of the Eagle" at the matinee only.

This promises to be one of the best and most enjoyable shows of the season, with lots of good singing, dancing,
music and action.

Steal Contents of Truck Of Bristol Tobacco Co.

A truck of the Bristol Tobacco Company out of the Trenton branch, was stolen in Burlington, N. J., yesterday afternoon.

The driver of the truck had gone into a store to make deliveries and as he came out of the premises, saw the machine pull away.

The truck was later found near Trenton, but the contents valued at $1200 were gone.

MCKINLEY TO KNOW FATE

Norristown, Oct. 8.—The fate of Horace McKinley of Abington, charged with the slaying of Edward Judd, alias O'Brien, was expected to be known today at the reopening of the Montgomery County Court.

McKinley's guilt or innocence was left with the jury shortly after noon, yesterday. The jurors debated until 10:45 p. m. last night, when they were locked up for the night.

The trial had consumed almost five days, the hearings taking place before Judge J. Ambler Williams.

McKinley is accused of the fatal shooting of Judd, July 8th, last, at the roadhouse of Mrs. Pearl Flynn, over whose affections the pair had quarreled.

ARREST FIRE-BUG

Wilmington, Del., Oct. 8.—The pyromaniac responsible for fires which have caused more than $100,000 damage to farms in this vicinity was believed under arrest today by State police. The suspect is Thomas Kelly, 50, a former inmate of the New Castle County Poorhouse. Kelly will be examined in a sanity test.

PLAN 20-YEAR DISARMAMENT

Geneva, Oct. 8.—A 20-year plan of disarmament to be carried out in five-year stages with the world finally disarmed at the end of two decades is being put forward by France as a con-commitment to President Hoover's plan, it was learned today.

WOMAN DIES AFTER AUTO CRASH INJURIES

Mrs. Josephine Puglese, Philadelphia, Was En Route to Employment

SEVERAL OTHERS HURT

One woman was fatally hurt, another seriously injured and five other persons more or less bruised last night in two automobile accidents on the Lincoln Highway.

The dead:

Mrs. Josephine Puglese, 50, 3048 North 21st street, Philadelphia. She died a few minutes after being admitted to St. Francis' Hospital, Trenton.
Death was due to a broken neck.

The accident in which Mrs. Puglese was injured occurred at Penn Valley and the car struck a bridge.

Mrs. George Snook, of Cranbury, is in McKinley Hospital suffering from lacerations of the forehead and right arm, fracture of the right ankle and possible fracture of the skull. Her condition is regarded as serious, but she is expected to recover.

Her son, Raymond, 28 years old, driver of the car, her grandson, Andrew Ett, 9 years old, also of Cranbury, and Mrs. Puglese's 12-year-old daughter, Margaret, escaped injury.
Raymond, who accompanied his mother to the hospital, told authorities that he must have fallen asleep as he approached the bridge.

The Snooks, who operate a farm at Cranbury, drove to Philadelphia to get Mrs. Puglese, who was to be given work at the farm.

Hector Crysanko, 12 years old, of Philadelphia, was in the automobile with other occupants declared that he had not been injured. The boy disappeared after the crash and police had not been able to locate him early this morning.

Two persons were injured in an automobile crash on the Lincoln Highway near South Langhorne. Miss Freda Stetcher, 4653 North Marshall street, Philadelphia, and Nelson Breininder, 3510 North 24th street, Philadelphia, were taken to the Frankford Hospital, as the result of the accident, which involved three cars.
Miss Stetcher, whose condition is regarded as serious, was reported to be suffering from a punctured lung and rib fractures. Breininder sustained head lacerations.

Highway Patrolmen Berger and Lohr, who investigated the accident, said that an auto driven by Sidney Kurtz, 720 Pine street, Philadelphia, traveling west on the highway, sideswiped a car driven by Henry Garo-fali, of 731 North 65th street, Philadelphia and collided with another machine operated by Herman F. Pfeffer, 1819 West Ontario street, Philadelphia. Miss Stetcher and Breininder were passengers in the Pfeffer car.
The police made no arrests.

tal. Wales was the guest of the Swedish royal family.

SONS OF TEMPERANCE MARK 50TH BIRTHDAY

Turkey Banquet, Speeches and Installation of Officers Feature

ALL MEMBERS PRESENT

An urgent plea was made at the 50th anniversary celebration of Bristol Division, No. 107, Sons of Temperance, for opposition to the repeal of the 18th amendment. The celebration was held in Washington Hall, here, last night, and was attended by 100 per cent of the members of the Division.

Present at the meeting was Grand Worthy Patriarch of Pennsylvania, Robert P. Moore, who is a member of Keystone Division but who is now a resident of Bristol, living at 342 Taft street.

Officers of the Bristol Division were installed as follows:

Worthy patriarch, Mrs. Mary E.
Warden; worthy associate, Mrs. Harry
R. Hughes; recording scribe, James Guy; assistant scribe, Mrs. Livingston Joyce; treasurer, William A. Mohre; financial secretary, Harry R. Hughes; chaplain, Miss Mae Smoyer; conductor, Mrs. Emily Orr; assistant conductor, Mrs. John Hunter; inside sentinel, Miss Emma Kessler; outside sentinel, Miss Nellie King; trustees—
George J. Sheppard, Miss Mae Smoyer and James Guy; pianist, Miss Nellie King.

Following the business session which was held on the third floor of the hall, adjournment was made to the second floor where there was a turkey banquet served.

James Guy, chairman of the entertainment committee acted as toastmaster at the banquet and there were remarks made by Grand Worthy Patriarch of Pennsylvania, Robert P.
Moore; past worthy patriarch, Charles E. Coombs; Harry R. Hughes, William A. Mohre, Mrs. Robert P. Moore also spoke briefly.

George J. Sheppard, who is the only living charter member of the Division, gave a resume of the activities of the Division and told of its early history.

Mrs. Mary E. Warden in her closing remarks urged the members to greater activity in view of the growing sentiment for the repeal of the 18th amendment. "Repeal of the 18th amendment would mean the undoing of the work of the Sons of Temperance and kin-dered organizations for the last century," she said.

Mr. Sheppard was presented with a box of cigars in honor of his 50th anniversary as a member of the Division.

Mrs. Sarah Magill Dies At Residence of Her Niece

Mrs. Sarah M. Magill, wife of the late James E. Magill, died yesterday at the home of her niece, Mrs. Anna R.
Satterthwaite, of Fallsington, following an illness of two months' duration.

The late Mrs. Magill had made her home with her niece in Fallsington for the past 13 years, having gone there from Bristol.

The deceased is survived by five grandchildren, James E. Magill, Ol-ney; Wilson Magill, Bristol; Ralph Magill, Trenton, N. J.; Mrs. Wesley
Spencer, Bristol; and Mrs. Russell
Bevan, Tacony.

Funeral services will be held on Tuesday, October 11th, at 2 p. m., from the Funeral Home of the H. S. Rue Estate.

Midnight Show Is Arranged at Riverside

The Riverside Theatre will introduce the new show season by playing a midnight show Sunday night.

The feature to be presented is "Dr.
X," the picture which broke all records at the New York Strand. It is said to be the weirdest story ever filmed, and being in technicolor it should satisfy the most particular movie-goer.

GET THE SCHOOLS BACK TO THEIR REAL PURPOSE

Speaker at Institute Pleas for

Frills

DR. McANDREWS SPEAKS

Gives Pedagogues Plenty of Food for Thought,
in Address

DOYLESTOWN, Oct. 8.—"Bring back the public schools of America to their original purpose, and get away from this scholarship stuff, selfishness and the foreign idea of culture and high learning," Dr. William Mc-Andrews, former superintendent of the Chicago public schools, told 800 school teachers and friends in an address at the seventy-eighth annual Bucks County Teachers' Institute in the Court House here yesterday.

Dr. McAndrews, who is now president of the American Educational Press Association, gave the pedagogues and others who listened in, plenty of food for thought in one of the most unusual talks ever delivered before an Institute audience here.

"New Wrinkles Researchers Are Telling You," was the subject of Dr.
McAndrews' afternoon address.

"Let me urge you that in the future in Pennsylvania, in Doylestown and everywhere in America, I hope, that the schools be conducted for the Commonwealth and not entirely for the children," he said.

BALKANS OF THE WEST

For all the talk of depression, poverty, bankruptcy and starvation in Latin America the luxury of war seems to be indulged in without stint by most of the South American countries. They cannot buy food but they have plenty of money for shot and shell.

The Peruvian congress has voted a $5,000,000 national defense loan. A $10,000,000 national defense loan has been floated in Colombia and new taxes created to service it. And Paraguay and Bolivia have been spending millions on their private war in the Chaco region.

Leticia, a channel port on the Amazon River, is the bone of contention between Peru and Colombia. Peruvians seized it on September 1 although it was awarded by treaty to Colombia in 1922. The quarrel between Paraguay and Bolivia is over some barren land and neither of the two warring nations would want it if the other didn't.

Both wars may seem like opera bouffe to the outsider, but they are fraught with serious consequences for the world. The world economic structure in its present weakened state cannot afford another war at this time. Latin-American social and political eruptions have been one of the contributing causes of world depression. Were all the countries of Latin-America to become embroiled it would doubtlessly cap the climax of revolution and economic chaos.

Has the quarrelsome quartet forgotten the pledge taken as members of the League of Nations, or does it mean nothing? Are their neighbors standing idly by while disaster knocks at their very doors?

BOREALIS

A campaign more than ever resolute is under way to rob the aurora borealis of its secrets. For centuries this strange phenomenon has fired the imagination of scientists and of late years much valuable data has been organized. But a great deal remains to be learned. The effort has now been made international in scope.

This offensive, waged by specialists of many lands, is not altogether a matter of scientific curiosity; for in this age of electrical development the Northern Lights represent frequently an inevitable force of greater or less potency.

Many an otherwise good night for radio reception is ruined by the mischievous Aurora Borealis. It has even been caught upsetting telegraph communication in the United States—charging the wires with excess electricity and making it impossible for a time to send messages.

It is not thought likely, however, that even with international mass formation and the aid of all the resources of modern science that this ancient wild spirit of the North can be brought to bay without a prolonged struggle.

Is it so redundant to call an executive of Chile the "provisional president pro tem?"

Big men are those who tell you how ornery juries are and haven't time to accept jury service.

It may be of interest to the cigar-making trade to know that the cabbage has been crossed with the radish.

Country Club to Reorganize, Is Decision of Members

LANGHORNE, Oct. 8.—A meeting of the members of the Bucks County Country Club was held last night for further discussion of the reorganization of the club. It was decided to reorganize and Frank Whitman, Langhorne, was named temporary chairman, to further the plans.

It was stated at the meeting that approximately three-quarters of the members had agreed to join the new organization which plans to occupy the present premises. The balance of the membership is to be interviewed and their membership solicited.

A dance is to be held October 31st. Those desiring to play golf at the club may do so now and pay as they play. This arrangement is only for the balance of the present year. The charge is $1 per day, including Saturday and Sundays. Tennis is 25 cents for two hours.

It is also planned to rent the club house for dances and other affairs.

FORMER BRISTOLIAN HURT

While enjoying play-time in the schoolyard, Miss Gladys Croft, Parkland, formerly of Bristol, on Wednesday, fell and lacerated her arm. Six sutures were taken.

CHAPTER XXIX.

"SHUT UP!" She had lost all control of her temper now. She flew at him, shaking and sobbing as in the old days she had flown at her mother.

"Shut your mouth! Oh, I'm sick of you—sick of the way you treat me. I won't stand it another minute. I'm through—you hear me? You are nothing but a dirty, low-down bum; that's all you are, living on me. You even bought the eggs with my money, you know you did! You did! Don't try to talk to me—I won't listen. You aren't worth Ralph McKevitt's little finger. What do you suppose he thought, seeing that stuff there on the table? I said it was there all the time, but do you think he believed me? Who would? What kind of a reputation do you think I'll have with you sticking around here all the time? People'll talk. I'll get put out, that's what! I won't stand it. You get out of here. I don't want to look at you any more—I don't want—" Paroxysms of sobs shook her; she was beating her breast, tearing at her short, curly hair; she wanted to wound him, to sting him out of his contemptuous calm; to goad him into a frenzy like her own.

He leaned against the wall, his lips parted, his sallow face deathly in its expressionless pallor. "Yes, I'm listening. Go on. Tell me some more about this—this angel that—" He licked his dry lips, and leered—"that loves art so much he pays—"

"That's just it," she blazed, dashing the furious tears away. "He won't go on. I'm through. Through with you, anyhow. Thank God I came to in time. I mighta gone on making an idiot of myself if you hadn't shown me—get out, will you?—You scum! I'm off with you—I've got a real man—a man, do you hear? And he loves me—and he'll take care of me—"

He waited until her wild sobbing had ceased. Then he picked up his greasy black hat, and the bread and the eggs. "You won't be needing my poor presents now, and I—I am still hungry, your exhibition has in no way impaired my appetite."

He bowed, with exaggerated gallantry, sweeping the floor with his limp, ragged hat. "Au revoir, dear heart. Or shall we say, farewell?"

"Get out! Get out of here!"

"Shh—not so loud, the janitor will hear you. Farewell, my kitten."

"I wish you well. What misfortune that it is I you love, and not this fine young man!"

"I'll show you," she panted when he had gone. "I'll prove how much I love you, you good-for-nothing!" Her voice was almost gone but she managed to whisper "Douglas 4829," her lips close to the telephone.

The operator, confused by her thick voice and broken breathing gave her the wrong number twice, but she pulled herself together and persisted. Finally a sleepy voice answered.

"Mr. McKevitt," she whispered hoarsely. "Get him quickly—it's important!"

And while a weary switch-board operator plugged in on McKevitt's apartment, a small, kimona-ed figure was tapping softly on Flora McCordle's door, second floor back, in the Hinkle menage.

Flora sat bolt upright in bed and dropped the book she had been reading. "Well? Who is it?"

Her big, heavy voice heartened the timid knocker. The door opened a crack, and Daphne's small white face appeared in the crack.

"I saw your light, Flora, and I couldn't sleep, so I wondered—" Flora, hard-boiled Flora, who could read faces almost as easily as books and found them much more interesting, took one long look at the unhappy girl and held out her arms.

"You poor kid! Come tell Flora all about it!"

Daphne wavered in the doorway. Her small face was very white, and her wide gray eyes were dark with pain. "I couldn't sleep, so I got to wandering around the house . . . oh, Flora, it was my stepister. With Ralph in the theatre tonight . . . oh, don't you know what I'm talking about?"

"Of course, honey—" "Flora, they used to be sweethearts, so I guess they are still. I didn't know that she was here . . . Flora! I'm so unhappy!"

Flora nodded, thoughtfully. So that's it! The poor child thought she was the only woman in his life!

And aloud she said, "I know. Come curl up on my bed. So the blonde is your stepister. That's a hell of a note. What's her name, same as yours?"

"Oh, no, hers is Garroty. Crystal Garroty. Father only married Mrs. Garroty a couple of years ago. Crystal was a young lady then. Oh, Flora, she's always been pretty, and had everything . . . everything she ever wanted, and millions of boy friends. I know that Ralph is just one more to her, it doesn't mean anything to her—it isn't fair!"

Little by little the story came out. All of it. All the story of the unhappy days at home, and the dawning love, and the Paisley shawl that Crystal took, and meeting McKevitt who stood for everything worth while, everything she loved, and wanted, and couldn't live without.

"For God's sake!" And, "Can you beat that?" And, "If that isn't a tough break!" Flora murmured from time to time. She didn't say much, but her thin, hard face was strangely softened. Her big, warm hand clasped Daphne's small, cold one, and she had drawn the shivering girl into her bed, and thrown a sweater over her shoulders.

"That's love all right. And that's what usually happens when you do fall in love," she said finally. "So he's busy with the blonde. What the devil is she doing in San Francisco?"

"Maybe art school," Daphne suggested. "You see he—he went to art affairs, and she always wanted to come here and study art. It was one of the things they used to fight over at home, because her mother didn't want her to. Crystal has talent, really. She used to make beautiful place cards."

Flora snorted. "So did my maiden aunt. That's enough—I've got her number!"

Daphne pulled at the covers nervously. "You think I'm jealous. And I am. I don't want to be, but I can't help it. I keep thinking about them together, and it makes me sick all over—all churning inside. But it isn't that so much, Flora. I could get used to that, but it's because it's Crystal, and she'll just ruin his life like her mother did Father's . . . I know . . . and I can't bear it. If I thought she really loved him, and would make him happy, I'd . . . I'd just back out, and be glad, because I want him to have . . . the . . . the best."

She broke down and cried then, and Flora's light blue eyes filled, and she grabbed a handkerchief from under her pillow, and dabbed at them angrily. "If we fool women aren't all alike? Catch a man caring about any girl's happiness. Selfish beasts, every one of 'em. I hate 'em all!"

"Oh no, Flora—" "I do—"

"Flora, if you ever loved anyone like I do him—"

"I did, damn it! That's why I'm blubbering with you! But I got over it, and you can too. Now you take my advice, and let him go, and look around for a better one. I never did think he was the right one for you, baby. He'd be a good catch for some slick one that could stand up for her rights, or didn't care too much about what he did in his spare time, but you're too soft for that. He'd just break your heart, and forget you. I know his kind—"

PRICES are Easy to Match

But you cannot match low grade prices with high grade quality

TOO low a price always means sub-standard goods; sub-standard service . . . subsequent dissatisfaction and usually subterfuge in advertising.

Without true quality there can be no true service. Without true service there can be no true satisfaction. Without satisfaction there can be no true value. Without true value there can be no true economy.

The attainment of Quality today does not mean high price. The attainment of quality means the selection of a store that will not countenance sub-standard quality to lure the misguided bargain seeker by too low a price.

SPORTS

FOOTBALL GAMES ARE BOOKED FOR TOMORROW

The strong newly organized Penn A. C. will open its gridiron season tomorrow morning, meeting the Harri-man F. C. on the high school field.

The Pennacs have been practicing for the past three weeks and have their plays down to near perfection. The team is being coached by Sammy Moffo and consists of all Bristol boys.

The game will begin at 10.30 o'clock.

With one victory already in the bag, the Croydon A. C. will attempt to make it two straight tomorrow afternoon when the eleven meets the Clover A. C., of South Philadelphia, on the Ed-dington field.

In 1929 the Clover eleven was the first club to beat the Croydonites and now the locals will be after revenge.

Coach Morgan has had his proteges practicing hard all week, teaching several new plays and correcting some of the faults of the Coopersville game. He is undecided as to whom will be in his starting lineup as the squad has increased to twenty-five during the past week. The squad is the largest ever to represent a Croydon team.

Game is scheduled for two-thirty o'clock.

Bristol Fighter Gets Draw in Mt. Holly Bout

Young Cheney, 132 pounds, of Bristol, vs. Curly Norcross, 137 pounds, of Seaside Park, won a hard-fought draw last night at Mt. Holly.

The Bristol boy put up the best fight of the night.

The feature bout was between Larry Crabtree, of Princeton, and Tony Doubilsky, of Burlington. Crabtree won in a knockout in the second round.

DANCE TOMORROW NIGHT

Tomorrow night in St. Ann's school auditorium there will be a dance given for the benefit of St. Ann's school. A large crowd is expected as dancing will be from 8.30 until midnight.

BRISTOL HIGH ELEVEN EASILY WINS FIRST GAME

By Oscar Corn
(H. S. Press Representative)

Amid much cheering, Bristol High easily romped through the tricky Langhorne High team for a winning decision of 34-0. This was the first home and scheduled game of the season for the Cardinal and Gray eleven.

Bristol was slightly heavier than the Langhorne eleven, and they out-classed their foes in every department. The line was very good; they gave Langhorne only two first downs. They ripped open big holes for the backs and never allowed Langhorne to come closer to the goal line than the thirty-five yard line. Brown, Smith, Embessi, Schiffer, Dyer, Feli, Karp, Zefferi, Platch, Niendorff, Blanch, Orazi, Piccari, Brambley and Rue (acting Capt.) did excellent work.

Many yards were made by the clever open-field running of the Cardinal and Gray backfields. They did very good blocking and tackling.

The main trouble of the Langhorne eleven was that they could not gain through the Bristol high's "backbone," the line. They didn't handle the ball cleanly and fumbled many times at critical moments.

The Bristol high team started their scoring spree in the early part of the initial canto. Getting the ball on the 48 yard line, they immediately swung into their stride. Bornice took the ball on a reverse and made eight yards. Cole sped 25 yards on the next down before he was stopped. Spencer made a first down. Then Cole did the remaining 4 yards for the first touchdown of the game and season. He drop-kicked the extra point.

Not satisfied with this seven point lead, and still desiring revenge, "Bill" Dougherty's proteges again broke into the scoring limelight in the early part of the second stanza.

The second quarter started with Bristol's ball on the 18 yard line. Atter Cole and Bornice advanced it to the 3 yard line. Bornice took it over. Cole again drop-kicked the extra point.

Langhorne chose to kick and Down-ing "booted" the ball to Cole who took it on the run on the 29 yard line. Due to marvelous interference, he came thundering along the side lines with the cunningness and swiftness of a natural open-field runner, he crossed 80 yards of alien territory to score. Piazza who came in for Cole failed to drop-kick the extra point.

Still fighting for glory, Bristol kicked to the 29 yard line. Zefferi made an excellent tackle and was knocked out. Downing dropped back to kick, but he fumbled, recovered, and kicked badly to the 29 yard line. Bornice made 8 yards off-tackle. Spencer, who is Bristol's best line plunger, hit the center of the line and by some neat ball running scored after a run of 12-yards. Piazza drop-kicked the extra point.

In the third quarter the Cardinal and Gray mentor put in the second team. Still Langhorne could gain no ground. Di Lissio, Tosti, DeFelice and Girotti did some good ground gaining, but failed to score.

The first team re-entered the game and after Spencer intercepted a pass on the 25 yard line. Roe on two plays, one good for 29 yards and the other for five yards scored. Cole drop-kicked the extra point.

Line-up:
Bristol
Brown left end
Blanch left tackle
Orazi left guard
Rue (Capt.) center
Schiffer right guard
Niendorff right tackle
Zefferi right end
Roe quarterback
Cole left halfback
Bornice right halfback
Spencer fullback

Score by periods:
Bristol 7 20 0 7-34
Langhorne 0 0 0 0-0
Touchdowns: Bristol, 5.
Points after touchdowns: Bristol, 4.
Dropkicks.

TACONY BULLDOGS WILL MEET ST. ANN'S SUNDAY

The St. Ann's A. A. will play their second game of the season tomorrow afternoon, meeting the Tacony Bulldogs at Tacony. The Tacony grounds is on State road and Cottman street.

The "Saints" dropped their first game of the season last week, losing to the Cheltenham Blue Devils, 7-0. The locals outplayed the Blue Devils but just did not have enough power to score.

Five players will be missing from the Bristol team's lineup this week. Joe DiMidio, flashy halfback, broke his shoulder bone and will be lost for the rest of the year, as will Charlie Greco, who broke his wristbone. "Eddie" Tosti, who did most of the ground gaining last week, injured his knee and this will probably keep him out of the Tacony fray.

Two linemen, Freddie Seneca and Freddie Lasprella will also be absent. Seneca met with an automobile accident and injured his hand. Lasprella was operated on this week and also will be lost.

However, the eleven will be greatly strengthened by the return of Tommy Morino and "Socks" Seneca, both veterans of the team. Gilardi, an end, who missed action last week, will be ready to start the fray.

Coach "Rip" Pieo drilled the boys during the past week and worked on the defects of last week's game. Several new plays were gone over and will be worked out on the morrow.

It is most likely that Coach Pieo will use one of his wingmen, "Bud" Tulio, as a tackle in the Bulldogs' game, because of the shortage of linemen.

effectively squelched by Dr. King who, as chairman, announced that no immediate changes in personnel were contemplated and that there would be no dismissals except for just cause. Dr. King in his state service has made a record of protecting those he believed worthy from the arrows of politics and he is not known as one who frequently changes his mind or his theories.

Stahlnecker in assuming his new duties seemed much more anxious to learn the details of the big job that faces him rather than to find a minor place for the second cousin of a Pinchot voter's uncle. Then too, as a member of the commission, Stahlnecker dare not engage actively in politics.

Although somewhat a power in Cameron County with its few thousand voters, C. Jay Goodnough, named yesterday to the last vacancy, is not looked upon as the sort of man who would be valuable in a big political fight. Quiet, restrained, Goodnough is deemed not liable to become a dominant factor in any political issue.

In making the appointments the Governor ignored all geographical considerations, waiving aside the dozens of claims he had from his supporters in Allegheny, Luzerne, and Lackawanna counties. Those counties have been the mainstay of the Pinchot strength and the three where professional utility baiters constantly stir up contention. None was recognized in the appointments.

Those who cling to the Pinchot retirement theory also cite the appointment of Leon D. Metzger as secretary of revenue, a post that pays $12,000 a year. That is one place that any political competent can fill with marked incompetence to the taxpayers while deputies do the work. Pinchot picked the man who had been in state service since 1919 and had been trained carefully in the theories of his former chief, Dr. King.

Another fact cited to support the theory is that the waves of dismissals which recently have swept many departments were largely compulsory and that very few of the faithful recently have been named to places made vacant.

At 67, however, Pinchot today is still almost as forceful as ever and still looked upon as capable of giving Pennsylvania taxpayers two years of faithful attention to the duties which devolve upon the chief executive.

He may have his eye once more on a seat in the United States Senate but many of his closest friends doubt it, citing the appointments of recent weeks to support their stand.

"How many people in this political campaign are reading both sides of the question in the daily newspapers so as to be able to know what is going on and what to do?"

Dr. Lewis said that he is afraid that the ideals forced on our boys and girls in days gone by are altogether wrong. "Most of the stories are built around the poor boy born in the log cabin who rose to fame and wealth," he declared. "I hope that some time before I'm through teaching someone will write a book on famous poor men of history."

"We are not going to raise the standard of citizenship by teaching the old customs, and by having the boys and girls study and memorize the constitution of the United States, which by the way, is not a bed-time story. We can teach citizenship only through the teachers in the schools living as good citizens should live."

"There is also lack of interest being shown by educational people in our mother tongue today. Recently some of the teachers applying for English positions at Lafayette, were almost illiterate from the letters they wrote."

"Present times and conditions demand more study of leisure time than ever before. It used to be normal leisure that we had but now it is forced leisure."

Dr. Lewis said that Lafayette College recently opened a class for unemployed men over a certain age, and that over 100 have entered the class.

"To be out of hire is not necessarily to be out of work," he said. "Leisure time is not as destructive as it is pictured if you will turn your attention to something constructive."

"The type of recreation we have now is much worse than ever before. Certain types of commercialized pleasure is deplorable, and includes certain types of moving pictures."

"The growth and expansion of music in the public schools of America is the greatest thing we have ever accomplished in this study of leisure time."

"We are not properly solving the leisure time question when we take the eleven big giants of a school, train them and place them in football togs to represent the school while there are thousands of shivering children standing on the sidelines."

"But it is gratifying to know that the educational system of America has come nearer up to standard than the financial and other institutions of the country."

County Superintendent J. Harry Hoffman opened the Institute and welcomed the teachers to Doylestown for the one-day session. He said that in his opinion the time has not yet come to abolish the Institute, and that next year there may be a two or three-day Institute again to take the place of the weekly Institute which for seventy-seven years was successfully conducted in Bucks county.

Mrs. Louise White Watson, of Fallsington, who started her teaching career in 1877, and who has attended twenty Bucks County Institutes, gave her "Institute Reminiscences" at the afternoon session. She said that in her opinion we need a revival in education just the same as in religion, business and in other lines.

One of the outstanding hits of yesterday's session was scored by the numbers rendered by the all county orchestra directed by Miss Eleanor R. Dingee, supervisor of music of the Quakertown schools, assisted by W. Orth, of Doylestown; Henry S. Gu knecht, Morrisville; Walton Burr, Newtown, and Alice M. Detweiler, Sellersville-Perkasie.

The New Football Rules

By HARDEN BURNLEY

--WALTER OKESON--

--WHO LECTURED THE EASTERN GRID COACHES AND OFFICIALS ON THE NEW RULES RECENTLY-- HE SAYS THAT STRICT ENFORCEMENT OF THE RULES WILL ELIMINATE THE NUMEROUS FATALITIES OF LAST SEASON!

THE FOOTBALL SEASON GETS UNDER WAY IN EARNEST TODAY!

1932 FOOTBALL

THE rules of the game—any game—and the way those rules are enforced, are immensely important. That's something to give thought to today, when the football season swings into its major orbit, and hundreds of thousands of football fans jam the college stadiums throughout the country to witness and take part in a great and colorful expression of the American scene.

In football, and this year particularly, rules of the game and their enforcement take on an importance that goes beyond the familiar "squareness" which the American sportsman and the American spectator demands and expects. In football, the rules have the vital importance of protecting the players—yes, protecting their lives. Football authorities were called upon to do more than deplore the large number of fatalities of last year. They were called on to amend the rules to provide more protection for the players, and we have the word of leading officials that the new rules actually do that.

The new rules are simple and clear. If they are enforced adequately by referees and officials who keep on their toes, it can be expected that injuries will be reduced greatly... only accident, that freak that may strike a man as surely in his archchair as on the gridiron, cannot be eliminated.

Briefly, then, the new rules provide that the ball is dead when any portion of the carrier except his hands and feet, touches the ground—this will prevent crawling; the flying tackle and the flying block are prohibited; defense players may use the palms of their hands only above the shoulders to push off opponents; striking with hands on head, neck or face is prohibited. Another rule provides that five players of the team receiving the kickoff remain within five yards of their restraining line until the kick is made.

Walter Okeson, president of the Eastern Football Officials Association, had a lot to do with the formation of the new rules, and it is his opinion that strict enforcement of the rules will go far in preventing the injury of players.

Ed Thorp, nationally famous official, goes along with Okeson in that opinion, and likes the new rules because they make it easier for officials to watch and decide infractions.

The rules, then, are all right; the players are all right and the officials are all right—what is going to count is the way the officials apply the all right rules to the all right players. And that's something for the cheering thousands in the stands to remember—that'll make it all right!

Does a BLINDFOLD KEEP YOU from OBTAINING the THINGS YOU WANT?

YOU'RE reading this part of the Courier . . . but have you failed to read another section? A section where wants are stated and merchandise exchanged at the lowest possible cost.

It's the want-ad section where the "seller" can find a ready market for anything from second-hand furniture to hundred-acre farms. And the "buyer" who is looking for real bargains, whether they be in apartments for rent or machinery for sale, can find the thing wanted at the price that can be paid.
